

ART & PHOTOGRAPHY ONLINE CONTEST

THEME: Creative Minds During Quarantine

Just because we are all currently trapped during the COVID-19 pandemic does not mean that we all need to stop creating. During this period, we have asked artists to present their works in relation to this situation, always prioritizing the aesthetics, originality and creativity of their work.

The artists were asked to submit drawings, photography and paintings that expressed the impact of the COVID-19 crisis and social distancing measures in their homes and neighbourhoods. We want to thank all the artists who sent us their artwork and that participated in our contest. Above all, stay at home and take care of yourself and your loved ones.

* Tell us the story about your creative art:

Universal suspending elements (Earth, sun, stars etc) in space always maintain a constant distance between themselves. No element comes near to another any time. It breaks them in between distance then total universe might collapse. This is identical to "COVID-19" virus save distance for human being (called a social distance). Universal nature teaching man how to protect themselves from devastating, harmful situation.

Category: Painting

Description: In a disturbed world, she exists a world where night and day keep recurring until tracking time seemed impossible. Every continent of the existing seven is under lockdown, and while frustration harboured minds she began to fetch her way out.

Nonetheless, The world's burdens, added to them her own seas of struggles remained stagnant within her soul for a while, firmly controlled by sobriety. Until one day -with a head in the sky- she miraculously swallowed the chaos and executed it as lifebuoys: of ART for survival

Title: The Earth back to natural

Category: Painting

Description: In my painting, I want to show how our mother nature is going back where it was. Though we are suffering from a pandemic, it is benefiting the earth as there is less human activity. It is getting back its natural colours, that is the trees are growing well without polluted air. And humans will get some pure air to breathe. Thus we should not only see the negative side of Covid-19.

Title: Impacts of isolation
Category: Painting
Description: I feel that the chaotic atmosphere of this piece very much depicts the emotions of many who have been impacted significantly by recent drastic changes driven by the pandemic. My passion for art lies with using gothic visual aesthetics to portray the odd and unusual through portraiture. This is particular piece is an exploration into what is perceived as abnormal behaviour in psychological terms and what causes that, intertwined with subtle elements of horror that reflect the tone of current events. My aim is to allow the audience to interpret art from an individual and honest perspective - encouraging them to question the context of the piece without knowing my own intentions for it being produced. Hence, for me, portraiture is a discovery and documentation of experiences and emotions through expressions.

Title: Fleurs de Cerisier

Category: Drawing/Paint - Creative Art

Description: This painting is one of my favourites, mainly because it has a lot of meaning to it, like I called it fleurs de Cerisier because my middle name is Cerise which means cherry in French and the full title is translated into cherry blossom tree. This is why I made the cherry tree bigger and more central than the other images, so that it's the first thing people see when they look at it. The story of the painting is that the young woman, who is looking to the rear of the painting, is remembering when her dog, Charlie, used to sit by that tree every day in the sun, however he died and the tree is the only thing she can remember him by. The canvas in the painting is supposed to represent her memory of Charlie and so it's not really there, it's just her imagination but it suggests to the audience that once there was a dog, now there's not.

The deviation of colour relates to the physical and spiritual colours, the monochrome (webbings) are my idea of the subconscious minds thinking, its ability to pass through physical and spiritual realms, but never the two shall fully connect. The separation is always there in a continuous cycle. The painting can also be seen with chroma depth glasses, this brings the painting to life and jumps out at the viewer in an under water 3D experience.

When I was brainstorming ideas for what to paint, I wanted to choose a cool and majestic animal that has meaning to it. After some consideration I chose the sea turtle. They are beautiful and ancient beings. I wanted to share their beauty with others as they are an endangered species. I feel that people forget about the creatures of the ocean when they litter and these actions are decreasing the turtle population. This artwork was created to help remind people that sea turtles are still there and that they are peaceful, gorgeous creatures.

Title: Ever Lasting Memory
Category: Painting

Description: This painting depicts the honesty, purity and innocence of the brother-sister relationship. They are all playing together, having fun time instead of always running after the materialistic comforts such as mobile phones, cinemas. These sweet and beautiful moments will be remembered till the last day of their life.

This quarantine has really shown us that relationships is more important than anything else in this world. Moreover, this period has helped many of us to be more understanding and supportive towards others.

Lantern Luminescence

Category:

Painting

Description:

I've always loved how oil pastels looked with drawings, especially when using as much of a variety of colour as possible. I just needed to figure out what the object was that I wanted to draw, and I was trying to think of something aesthetic, magical, in a way. And then the idea of a lantern popped into my head, with a candle right inside of it in the middle. I wanted the final result to give off a sense of magic, in a way.

Title: Isolated art

Category: Painting

Description: I took a photograph one evening during isolation of the beautiful sunset from my little treehouse window. I've always loved the views from my house in the country but I only now fully appreciate it and everything I have. I loved the photograph so much I decided to recreate it by painting it in watercolours to portray the lowering sun over the hills and fields.
